Move For Hunger mobilizes the relocation industry to reduce food waste and fight hunger.

MISSION

Nearly 50 million Americans struggle with hunger, yet an estimated 40% of all food grown, processed, and transported in the United States will never be consumed. Move For Hunger is committed to remedying this contradiction.

Move For Hunger works with relocation professionals across the United States and Canada to rescue unopened, non-perishable items and deliver them to local food banks and pantries, helping to fill the cupboards of less-fortunate families in the communities they serve.

Move For Hunger mobilizes the relocation industry to reduce food waste and fight hunger.
Dear Friends,

Move For Hunger was founded on the belief that we could mobilize the relocation industry to reduce food waste and fight hunger. I knew we had the resources that, if put to good use, could truly help millions of people. I was confident that your capacity for compassion would make this endeavor sustainable over the long-term. As we celebrate our seventh anniversary, I am as optimistic about our project as I have ever been.

To date, Move For Hunger has delivered more than 7.6 million pounds of food – enough to provide 6.3 million meals – to food banks and pantries all across the United States and Canada. In 2016, we helped coordinate a record number of food drives, and our network became increasingly involved in the large scale food rescues that are necessary to significantly reduce waste.

Despite these successes, there is no time to rest on our laurels. Fifty million Americans still face hunger each day. Forty-percent of the food produced in the country each year gets dumped in a landfill or is left to rot in the field.

The challenges we face are daunting, but they are not insurmountable. My hope that we will one day end hunger is reinforced by every driver who makes that extra trip to the food bank at the end of a long shift; by the hundreds of everyday people who decide they need to do something to help their neighbors in need; by the amateur athletes who pledge to turn their miles into meals. It is so inspiring to watch ordinary people come together and do extraordinary things.

I want to thank Montway Auto Transport, Victory Packaging, Atlas Van Lines, and all of our partners who have volunteered their time and resources to help increase our impact. I also want to thank the thousands of amazing donors who made a contribution in 2016. Ninety-five percent of your donations helped to fund our programs. We wouldn’t be able to continue our work to feed struggling families without your generous support.

I am so proud of everything we have already accomplished, and, with your continued support, I am certain that our best work is yet to come.

Adam Lowy
Executive Director

Did you know that 40% of the food produced in the United States each year is wasted? It’s hard to believe that, in a country where nearly 50 million people face hunger each day, so much food could end up in a landfill. Yet, this is precisely what is happening – and we’re all partially to blame. Food is being wasted at every level of the supply chain: on the farm, during distribution, at the store, and in our homes.

This year, members of our network worked hard to rescue good food and deliver it to the people who need it most.

Our network is dedicated to reducing food waste. In addition to rescuing food during moves and helping with food drives, several moving companies also assist with large scale food rescue events, such as gleaning (transporting excess harvests from farms to food banks), delivering overstock from grocery stores to food banks, and recovering leftover food from large events, such as marathons. These food rescue events are an easy way to help keep food banks fully stocked.

FOOD RESCUE

We rescued more than 11,000 lbs. of food from the Rock N’ Roll Marathon this year. All it took was a couple of hours and an empty truck.

-Andrew Rozzi, Gentle Giant Moving Company of Philadelphia

We are so grateful to have partners in the community that are joining us in the fight against hunger. Without their help, our mission would not be possible.

-Elizabeth Jabco, Philabundance
Move for Hunger is easy for our team to support... the cause is noble and the impact is local. It has become part of our culture - every member of our office is involved.

MEDIA

We don't do it for the publicity, but it's always nice to see the generosity of our movers, partners, and food drive organizers recognized by their local media. This year, Move For Hunger was mentioned in the news nearly 900 times. Here are a few of our favorites:

SOCIAL MEDIA

In 2016, our social media audience continued to grow and became increasingly engaged. By sharing compelling content, we are driving more traffic to our website, encouraging greater participation in our programs, and positioning ourselves as a thought leader in the spheres of hunger and food waste.
Our internship program continued to thrive in 2016, developing into three distinct disciplines and including a remote opportunity for the influx of interest from students across the country.

Non-profit Management is our core internship program. Its multi-faceted curriculum continues to attract top-notch candidates, including many graduate students pursuing degrees in Public Health and Social Work. Duties include food drive coordination, event management, hunger relief and food waste advocacy, fundraising, communications, and marketing. Our New Media Communications internship program introduces professional new (or social) media practices to students. The curriculum includes creating a social media strategy to effectively communicate predetermined messages.

The Graphic Design internship program continues to successfully attract creative young minds to help design food drive fliers and other collateral for the organization. Next semester, we will launch a fourth program focused on Marketing and Relationship Management to assist our Programming team and focus on our network.
Other companies actually comment on what a fabulous idea it is. Most of them would not consider rescuing food during the move.
