EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

DEAR FRIENDS,

Each year, I typically begin these messages by saying something like “What an incredible year!” or “I’m feeling so excited...” But the truth is – 2020 was hard, and I’m actually feeling pretty tired. Personally, it was one of the more challenging years of my life. When the pandemic began, I was living with my wife and daughter in a two-bedroom apartment just outside NYC. Our childcare options disappeared, our tiny closet became the home office, our social life became non-existent, and I struggled with anxiety and depression about the loneliness I was feeling and the thought of catching COVID-19. We solved the space issue by moving into our first home, and our family helped out with childcare. Unfortunately, we also ended up catching COVID at the tail end of 2020. Fortunately, our symptoms were mild, and we’ve since recovered.

Professionally, my team and I were faced with some pretty extraordinary choices and challenges. Would there be layoffs? Will the PPP run out before we can apply? Will our partners decide that funding our organization isn't a priority this year due to their own financial struggles? Will our network feel less engaged without all the fun conferences, food drives, truck pulls, and events? Fortunately, the answer to all of those questions was “No.”

So perhaps I start this again.

2020 was a year of resilience. It was a year of challenges, innovation, technology, and relationships. It was a year of protest and division as millions came together to reaffirm the fact that #BlackLivesMatter. It was a year of sorrow as we’ve now lost more than 2 million people, globally, to this vicious disease while nearly 100M+ others, including myself, will live with the uncertainty of future health effects. And it was certainly a year of hunger – now with more than 50 million Americans and 1 in 8 Canadians struggling with food insecurity.

And while 2020 felt like an eternity, it’s now over. Now we can reflect and recognize the many bright spots that shined through the darkness. Despite its challenges, Move For Hunger had its most impactful year to date. We delivered more than 5 million pounds of food to food banks across the US & Canada in a single year – which is 25% of the overall total we’ve delivered over the past 11 years combined. We piloted new, socially distant food drives, and added freight and logistics companies to our network. We began working with farmers, gleaning organizations, food manufactures, and distributors and literally recovered truckloads of food. We found virtual ways to engage our partners and their employees while still remaining true to our mission to stop food waste and fight hunger.

Move For Hunger accomplished all of this with the most amazing team I could ever ask for along with our incredible board, action committees, partners, interns, and volunteers who literally make it happen each and every day. The logistics of getting food to where it is most needed isn't easy, and I am beyond grateful to those who are working together with us to ensure that millions of people won't go to bed hungry.

On a personal note, I got to spend the whole year with my wife and two-year-old. No conferences. No travel. Just working together to help our daughter grow. No better silver lining if you ask me.

It's now a new year. Stay tuned for new programs, new content, new milestones, and new ways for YOU to get involved.

Thanks for continuing on this journey with us. We are more committed than ever to help fight hunger and food waste and provide meals for those in need.

Thank you,

Adam Lowy
Founder & Executive Director

STATE OF HUNGER-COVID-19

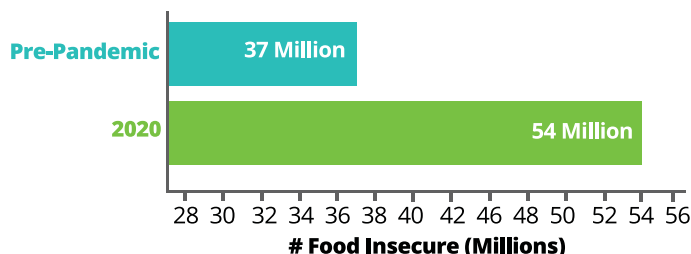

During these difficult and uncertain times, there is no doubt that the COVID-19 pandemic has had a huge impact on those who struggle with food insecurity. Throughout the pandemic, Move For Hunger has remained committed to our mission to find ways to rescue food. We have been doing whatever we can to provide assistance to food banks throughout the US and Canada to meet the extreme demand they face.

The COVID-19 pandemic has had a devastating economic impact and has drastically increased the need for emergency food assistance nationwide. More than 37 million Americans were food insecure before the pandemic with estimates saying that number has increased by 17 million in 2020. Communities that were already struggling will be hit the hardest.

With each passing day, the number of people who find themselves in need of food assistance grows significantly. 72% of the households served by affiliated food banks live at or below 100% of the federal poverty line. These households simply don't have enough money to consistently put food on the table. Americans are working harder than ever, but are still struggling to make ends meet. The pandemic exacerbates the issues that food-insecure households already face.

Move For Hunger will continue to deliver truckloads of food to our nation's food banks while increasing education on the issues of hunger and food waste. We will continue to provide meals to families, children, seniors, and vulnerable communities who are struggling as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. Due to our donors and members' help, we can rapidly respond to the growing hunger crisis our country is facing.

The number of Americans facing food insecurity may increase by 17 million as a result of the pandemic

Premium Q Moving & Storage delivered pallets of food to local Boston food pantry, Project Soup, at the start of the pandemic.

GoGo SqueeZ refueled frontline workers by donating over 300,000 lbs of food across 10 states to nearly 400 individual organizations and leveraged over 20 of our transportation partners to do it.

HUNGER & RACIAL EQUITY

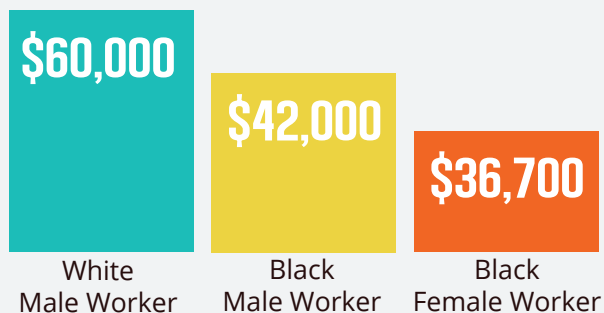

People of any color, ethnicity, or demographic background can experience food insecurity. Some groups, however, are more vulnerable than others. African American households face hunger at 2x the rate of white, non-Hispanic households.

Why are minorities predominantly the populations that are affected by hunger? The higher rates of food insecurity & poverty and the racial wealth gap are a direct result of systemic racial and gender discrimination in virtually every aspect of American life. Although slavery was abolished more than 150 years ago, the legacy of oppression has lived on through policies that have trapped millions of Black Americans in poverty for generations.

It should be obvious that food insecurity is a racial equity issue. A cycle of deprivation prevents minority families from achieving economic success, as presented by low wages and wealth gaps. It is important for this issue to be acknowledged so we can address the root causes of the problem.

REAL MEDIAN EARNINGS FOR A FULL TIME WORKER

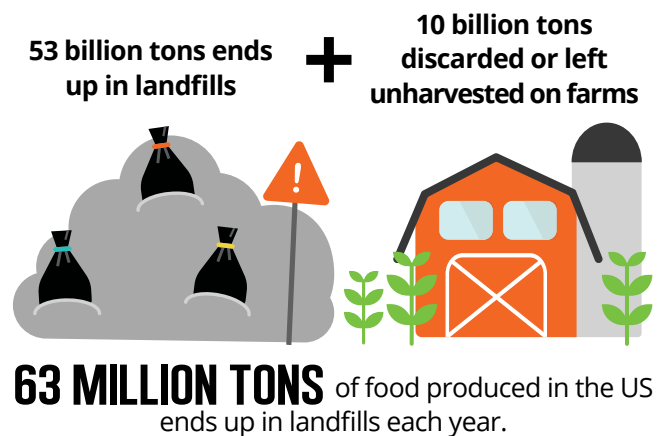

40% of African American students attend high poverty schools - 6x the rate of white students.

BLACK LIVES MATTER

Fixing this problem is not going to be easy. It will require an extraordinary commitment to remedy these historic injustices. Move For Hunger will continue to support our food banks and pantries because millions of Americans need help today. But we need to start thinking bigger, we need to ask ourselves difficult questions, and confront the systemic racism that permeates our society if we ever hope to end hunger once and for all.

SUSTAINABILITY & FOOD WASTE

According to ReFED, a non-profit dedicated to reducing food waste in the United States, 40% of the food produced in the US ends up in landfills. How much is 40%? This equates to 63 million tons of food - which is an insane amount and is significantly higher than the global average. All this waste has a financial impact as well. Financially, this costs the US more than $218 billion dollars annually. How does that affect me, you might ask? Well, the average American wastes 219 pounds of food annually, and the typical family of four throws away $1,600 worth of produce each year. That's a nice chunk of change most Americans would love to have back in their wallets. But the costs aren't just financial; all of this food ends up in landfills. In fact, according to the Environmental Protection Agency, food is the single largest component taking up space inside US landfills - making up 22% of municipal solid waste.

In the United States
40% OF FOOD
ends up in landfills.

There are many reasons why food is wasted: over-purchasing, overproducing, labor and logistics issues, undesirable ugly fruits & veggies, discarding leftovers, not composting, or straight-up confusion by date labeling. Have you ever looked at those things? "Best By," "Sell By," "Use By," "Expires By," etc... What does it all mean?! While date labels can help provide (some) guidance, they aren't going to tell you the exact date that your food will spoil. A new standardized system is definitely needed to help reduce this confusion.

Food is being wasted at EVERY level of the supply chain

Farm

Distribution

Home

However, there are solutions, and Move For Hunger is proud to be one that is unique. It's going to take collaborative efforts between the stakeholders of our food system, policymakers, and individuals like you changing behaviors to actually begin to reduce food waste. We're up for the challenge! Are you?

RESPONSE TO HUNGER

Move For Hunger has begun exploring ways to help deliver fresh farm produce to those who need it most. This will be a critical new program because it will help prevent even more food from going to waste. One of our members, Don Queeney of Hampton Roads Moving and Storage, recently entered the world of fresh produce. He and his family have built and maintained a garden full of fresh vegetables. They have harvested over 2,000 pounds of food and also deliver weekly loads of product to supermarkets.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, freight and bulk food rescue have become an integral part of our operations. Bulk food rescue provides large amounts of food to food banks across the country. Transportation and logistics continue to be a huge challenge for food banks, and that's where Move For Hunger and our members have really stepped up during the pandemic. We have also formed strong relationships with transport carriers that aren't traditional moving companies but are still able to use their trucks to assist. This year we worked with major corporations, like Kraft Heinz and Sodexo, to transport pallets of food. Due to the generosity of these companies, over 341,000 pounds of food, enough for 284,000 meals, have been provided across America.

Don Queeney, the owner of Hampton Roads Moving and Storage, built a vegetable garden that produced over 2,000 lbs of food for a local non-profit.

Baltimore's A-One Moving transported 5 pallets of food from the Kraft Heinz Company to Caring For Friends in Philadelphia.

Crown Relocations delivered more than 30,000 pouches of assorted GoGo SqueeZ products to Montefiore Medical Group, the Community FoodBank of New Jersey, and The Salvation Army Red Bank Corps.

Apex Moving + Storage hosted their annual Thanksgiving food drive and collected over 140,000 lbs of food for the Nourish Food Bank in Murfreesboro, TN.

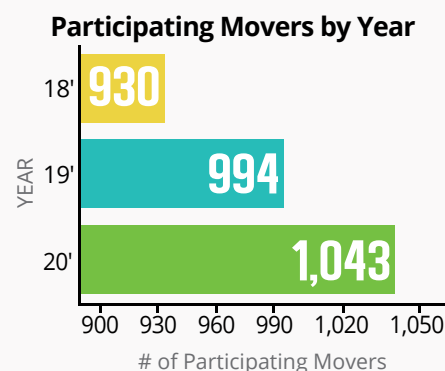

Two Men and a Truck - Champaign helped a local non-profit, Feeding Our Kids, with weekly food transports from May until the end of the year.

Ward North American stepped up at the beginning of the pandemic to deliver nearly 4,000 lbs of food to frontline workers.

FRONT PORCH FOOD DRIVE

The Front Porch Food Drive is a perfect way to feed your community, while also safely social distancing. This contactless food drive opportunity allows small groups to get together and distribute paper collection bags in their local neighborhoods. Those willing to participate can fill the provided paper bag with any unopened, non-perishable food items and leave it on their front porch, steps, or in a visible area. Then, on a certain day and time, volunteers can collect all the bags filled with donations that were left out.

Move For Hunger will provide the promotional flyers explaining the process in more detail and paper collection bags. We also arrange transportation with one of our local moving companies to pick up the bags and deliver them to a previously chosen local food bank. Our Front Porch Food Drive campaign is supported through the generosity of the Sodexo Stop Hunger Foundation.

TEAM MOVE FOR HUNGER

As a result of the pandemic, most endurance sports events across the country, including marathons & 5ks, were either canceled or turned to virtual opportunities in order to protect all participants this year. While our Team Move For Hunger teammates were limited this year in the events they could participate in-person, we are proud of all of our runners & walkers that were able to turn their miles into meals this year. Click Here to get involved today.

Jordan Bute from Ace World Wide Elite Relocation Services completed 50 miles as part of the Virtual Moon Joggers-Locking Arms in Love 50 Mile for Move For Hunger. Jordan completed the ultra marathon in 10 hours, 17 minutes & 18 seconds and raised over $625, which provided 1,475 meals.

The Key West Half Marathon & 5k weekend took place on January 18, 2020. Andy & Katie Dewitt and Lee Franc from A-1 Moving & Storage of Jupiter, FL joined Team Move For Hunger and completed the 5k in the Southernmost Point in the USA. Together they raised $1,780, providing 4,225 meals.

William Vogt of Weichert Workforce Mobility was excited to be training to complete his first ever marathon as part of the NJ Marathon weekend and raise money for Team Move For Hunger. When the race was cancelled due to the pandemic, he decided to run the 26.2 mile distance throughout his neighborhood in NJ to honor his commitment and virtually completed the event with his family creating a finish line of support. William raised $7,805, providing 18,000 meals through his efforts.

Andy & Katie Dewitt and Lee Franc turned miles into meals in Key West.

The cancellation of the NJ Marathon did not stop William Vogt from running.

TRUCK PULLS

Truck Pulls are Move For Hunger's signature fundraising event - in cities across the country, teams compete to see who can pull a moving truck 100 feet in the fastest time and be named the Truck Pull Champions. Although our network couldn't gather in person for the majority of the year due to the Covid-19 pandemic, we were able to hold one Truck Pull to kick off the beginning of 2020!

On February 29, we held the San Diego Truck Pull at AleSmith Brewing Co., marking the first time that we've ever hosted this event in the Golden State. Nine teams competed to see who could pull an Ace Relocation Systems truck 100 feet the fastest. A grand total of $12,010 was donated to support our hunger relief efforts!

We couldn't have pulled off this event without the support and passion of our San Diego Truck Pull Committee, as well as sponsorships from Ace Relocation Systems, Dewitt Move Worldwide, ReloTrans Auto Transport, Sullivan Solar Power, CDS Moving Equipment, Johnson's Storage and Moving, Republic Moving & Storage, Blue Chip, California Relocation, National Insurance Housing, and PC Housing. We're looking forward to a 2021 filled with more Truck Pulls to come!

MOVE FOR HUNGER VIRTUAL EVENT

Our MOVE For Hunger Virtual Event is a way to get MOVING and help provide meals for those in need, one step at a time. By participating in our virtual event, and staying active throughout the pandemic, participants came together and MOVED to show their support. Everyone that MOVED with us this year, received a one-of-a-kind medal to show their support, a downloadable certificate to print & share how they MOVED for hunger, and a social media filter frame to highlight their accomplishments. Participants completed all different kinds of activities to show us how they MOVED from walking with their dogs, running a 5k, and hiking in their local park. While all activities were done in a safe & socially distant way, despite everyone being apart from each other, together this amazing group of people MOVED together as one, to fight hunger as part of our virtual event.

EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

Our partners continued to find unique ways to engage their employees while raising funds or providing food for those in need, and 2020 was no exception. Before March, it was fairly business as usual with in-person events like Kastle's ArCANtecture event where 10 teams of employees had 30 minutes to build a structure made out of cans. As the year rolled on and everything went virtual, we had to adapt our employee engagement activations. We held several virtual wellness events including Assurant's Turning Miles Into Meals Challenge. One hundred and sixty-two employees combined to travel over 14,000 miles raising $50,000 in the process.

"The COVID-19 pandemic has dramatically increased the number of people who are struggling financially with the ability to put food on the table so completing this challenge and supporting the critical work of Move For Hunger is more important than ever," said Ryan Lumsden, President of Multifamily Housing, Assurant.

Kastle ArCANtecture's event took place at the beginning of the year as part of their Sales Kickoff conference in Washington D.C. Employee teams built various structures including of course, a castle. All the food was donated from Harris Teeter and eventually transported to local food banks courtesy of Paxton Van Lines

After the pandemic began and the food crisis became worse, Kastle stepped up to the challenge by encouraging their employees to host a Front Porch Food Drive as part of their Kastle C.A.R.E.S. Day of Service initiative. Their event brought in nearly 2,000 pounds which provided 1,600 meals.

During the spring when we all were adjusting to quarantine life, Assurant wanted their employees to get out and get active. 162 employees participated in the Turning Miles Into Meals Challenge. By walking, jogging, biking, and all sorts of other activities, Assurant donated $50,000 to Move For Hunger, providing 120,000 meals.

Pinnacle Living wasn't just satisfied with a simple food drive and fundraiser, they wanted to raffle off an iPad as well. With over 200 people vying for the Apple gadget, the sweepstakes and fundraiser provided about 28,000 meals.

INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

Move For Hunger's Internship Program is open to students, recent graduates, and life-long learners. It is a perfect opportunity for anyone who is interested in the daily operations of a successful non-profit. Move For Hunger is committed to creating a program that will support our mission to reduce food waste and fight hunger while simultaneously providing interns with the experience they need for future careers in the non-profit space. In 2020, we gave 17 students from our local community the opportunity to intern with Move For Hunger.

In 2020, our interns helped promote food drives, organize fundraisers and other events, and much more. They continue to be instrumental in the success of Move For Hunger.

FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

Move For Hunger's Fellowship is an investment in our community and in the future of the anti-hunger movement. It is important to give people who are underprivileged or underrepresented a chance to lend their voice to the conversation. Our fellowship empowers and opens doors for potential leaders. Thanks to a generous grant from the OceanFirst Foundation, we were able to welcome our second Move For Hunger Fellow in the Winter/Spring of 2019/2020: Jennifer Rivera.

We will challenge millions of people to confront the issues of hunger and food waste and provide them with opportunities to take action.

Together, we will create a world where no food is wasted, and everyone has enough to eat.
