

FIGHTING HUNGER ONE MOVE AT A TIME

Follow these simple steps & let the food collection begin!

FAQ:

What kind of food should we accept?

We suggest only collecting unopened, nonperishable, and non-expired food donations. These are most likely to be accepted by your local pantry or food bank.

Where is my local food bank or food pantry?

You are welcome to donate to any organization your company wishes to support. Check out your Digital Program Materials, Move For Hunger provided a recommendation based on location and best hours. Contact info@moveforhunger.org for a reminder!

How does Move For Hunger keep track of our impact?

Move For Hunger keeps track of your impact based on how many pounds of food your team was able to accept.

Can we donate items other than food?

Move For Hunger's mission is to focus on rescuing unopened, non-perishable food donations that would otherwise end up in the trash.

1 THE ESTIMATE:

Introduce Move For Hunger on every estimate. The Program Letter will educate your customers and encourage them to donate food on moving day.

Leave behind a collection box or a Move For Hunger box label to keep track of donated food.

2 THE CALL:

Remind your customers to donate food when confirming the move.

Here is a simple example:

"Our crew will be there at 9 a.m. on Thursday. Don't forget to put a couple cans aside and we'll deliver them to the local food pantry."

Tip: Add "Donate your food when you move" to reminder emails, employee email signatures, and move-out checklists.

3 MOVING DAY:

Ask your customers if they have any unopened, non-perishable food items they would like to donate.

Bring any donations back to your office or warehouse, letting a few boxes pile up before delivering them to the food pantry. We recommend dropping off donations monthly!

4 FOOD DELIVERY:

Set a monthly goal with your team:
ex. Getting 10 customers to donate their food each month

Once you have a few boxes, deliver it to your local food pantry. Don't forget to send Move For Hunger the weight receipt at Receipt@moveforhunger.org
